

Meet a Member – Nancy Crasco

HerStory

Nancy made her first quilt in 1968, using scraps left from the clothing she made for her family. Encouraged by friends and family to make more, she was soon creating them to sell at Craft Fairs and through quilt shops.

In 1977 she noticed an announcement posted in her Arlington neighborhood that a quilt guild was being formed. Eager to meet people who were doing what she was doing, she attended the first meeting in the Park Avenue Congregational Church. She has been active ever since, and says that QC has made an enormous impact on her quilting life.

Her first forays into lecturing, teaching, and exhibiting started with QC. The friendships she has forged and the skills she has honed in workshops and other QC activities are the most valuable features of QC membership, and she expects to be a member as long as she's above ground!
